

Great Rift Valley

Millions of lesser flamingos feed and breed around the edges of alkaline lakes in East Africa's Great Rift Valley. Flocks of adults fly in formation every day in search of fresh water to drink.