

HOW MUSCLES CONTRACT

In muscle that is relaxed, the myofilaments only partly overlap. When a muscle contracts, the myosin filaments slide in between the actin filaments, shortening the myofibrils and the entire muscle fibre. The more shortened muscle fibres there are, the greater the contraction in the muscle as a whole.

