

may be needed, so make sure you have at least three portions of dairy products or alternatives a day, and eat lean red meat for iron and vitamin B12, or take supplements. In the US, almost 95 percent of flour is enriched with iron and four of the B vitamins including folic acid. Since gluten-free bread is not made with wheat, these nutrients need to be supplied elsewhere.