

nauseous when your stomach is empty. One good trick is snacking. Eating five small meals rather than three large ones can be soothing to a nauseous stomach, while at the same time giving you the energy and nutrients that you need.

In the US salt is the main source of iodine. But another good source is milk. Organic milk contains less, and some dairy alternatives contain none. Fish, especially white fish, and seaweed are great sources, but avoid eating kelp since it contains too much iodine.
