

ASK A DOCTOR

Why do I have so much saliva in my mouth now that I'm pregnant? Called ptyalism, excess saliva is caused by increased hormone levels. Don't try to keep the saliva in your mouth; if you find yourself drooling, spit into a tissue or small cup. Place a towel on your pillow. Sucking lemon wedges or ice cubes may help. Ptyalism usually subsides in later pregnancy.