

Before your pregnancy was confirmed, you may have felt tingling sensations (especially in the nipple area) as the blood supply increased.

- As early as 6–8 weeks, your breasts will have become larger and more tender and may have begun to look different, with threadlike veins starting to appear.
- At around 8–12 weeks, the nipples darken and can become more erect.
- As early as the 16th week of pregnancy, colostrum, the first milk, may leak from your breasts.
