

ASK A NUTRITIONIST

Is it safe to drink herbal teas? Herbal teas don't contain caffeine, but herbs and dietary supplements are not regulated by the Food and Drug Administration, and there's not much research about the effects of many herbs on pregnancy. Stick to decaffeinated black teas. If you want to drink fruit or ginger teas, make sure no herbs are present. Also, limit green tea, because it may interfere with fetal growth.

