

The dramatic changes happening to your body may be mirrored in the wide swings of emotions and feelings you experience throughout your pregnancy. Some days you may feel excited and elated at the prospect of being a parent, and on other days you may feel quite overwhelmed and anxious.

Perhaps the nine months' gestation period is nature's way of giving us time to get used to the idea of becoming a parent and allowing us time to deal with our emotions and prepare for the birth. So try to relax, but if you're feeling really anxious, speak to your doctor.