

Reflexology involves applying pressure to reflexes on the feet. It can help with nausea, backache, fluid retention, and swelling.

SLEEP PROBLEMS

Now that you're in the second trimester, you may be sleeping better. Or maybe not, since sleep-related problems can affect women during the entire pregnancy. Here are some common problems and solutions:

- Heartburn Lying down soon after a big meal can cause acid reflux, known as heartburn. To lessen the possibility of disrupted sleep due to heartburn, avoid eating big meals 2–3 hours before bed. If your heartburn is severe, discuss options with your doctor.
- Restless leg syndrome This condition makes you feel the need to move your legs around to relieve a creepy-crawly feeling while you're lying in bed. It's a good idea to mention it to your doctor, since it can sometimes be caused by a deficiency that can be treated by taking supplements.
- Napping If pregnancy makes you tired, you may want to nap in the afternoon. But for some pregnant women, this extra shut-eye makes it more difficult to fall asleep at night. If this