

YOU ARE 16 WEEKS AND 1 DAY
167 days to go

YOUR BABY TODAY

Your baby's lips and mouth are well formed. The mouth opens and closes and the baby can swallow. Inside the mouth, the taste buds are now mature, but the baby cannot taste anything yet because nerve connections are immature.

“ Since this is considered to be a safe stage of pregnancy, with no, or few, symptoms to contend with, it's a great time to go on vacation. ”

At this time, you're likely to be over the sickness and fatigue of the first trimester and not overburdened by, or uncomfortable from, a large belly yet. You can also rest easy knowing that your baby is developing well, with very little chance of a miscarriage occurring. Going on vacation is a great opportunity to spend quality time with your partner and pamper yourselves.

Relax and enjoy yourself, but be aware of the extra health precautions you need to take during pregnancy (see Enjoy a healthy vacation and Traveling in pregnancy). If you've had any complications, check with your doctor that it is safe to go on vacation.

ENJOY A HEALTHY VACATION

If you go on vacation while you're pregnant, there are a few additional factors to consider:

- Give yourself plenty of time when you're trying to finish all those prevacation preparations; getting ready for a vacation can be stressful. Pack hand luggage sensibly so you won't have to carry heavy bags.
- Plan a road trip carefully, keeping in mind that you may need snacks and more bathroom breaks than usual.
- Be aware that sightseeing will be more tiring than usual, so pace yourself and allow yourself to spend time in a cafe, just watching the world go by.
- If you're abroad, drink lots of bottled water, especially if you're in a hot climate. Avoid having ice in your drinks since it may be made using tap water.
- Peel fruit or wash fruit and vegetables with bottled water.
- Carry snacks with you in case you can't find somewhere to eat quickly. Mini bags of crackers and rice cakes are a great option.
- If you get diarrhea, it's even more important than usual to drink plenty of water to replace the fluid you've lost. Don't take diarrhea medication and check with your doctor before taking any type of treatment for diarrhea. If your urine is very concentrated and you can't keep fluid down, see a doctor.
