

The hands move constantly, reaching out to touch the face or clutch at the umbilical cord.

Your uterus may now reach above your belly button, but there is a wide variation in belly size among women at the same week of pregnancy.

Beneath the skin, layers of body fat are being stored. Fats are essential because they contribute to the full development of the nervous system.

Every bone in your baby's body now contains bone marrow capable of producing blood cells.

In boy babies, the testes are still hidden within the pelvic cavity.

At 22 weeks the average crown to heel length is 10.9 in (27.8 cm), and the average weight is 15.2 oz (430 g).