

There's no need to tell your toddler how the baby got there, or to keep reminding them about it. Just answer their questions when they ask, without showing too much preoccupation with the matter.