

Incredible scientific and technological advancements have meant a huge increase in the survival of premature babies.