

If you are at high risk, you will take an oral glucose tolerance test (OGT) between 24 and 28 weeks of pregnancy.

BLOOD VOLUME

During pregnancy, your total volume of blood is 50 percent higher than normal. The amount of blood pumped with each heartbeat increases by about 40 percent and you make around 20 per-cent more red blood cells than normal.