

Your 33rd week

IT'S HARD TO IMAGINE HOW LIFE WILL BE WITH A NEW BABY.

All prospective moms, and not just first-timers, find it difficult to envision the future after the arrival of the baby. The imaginings, dreams, and hopes of the last few months are about to become realities—which may be very different from what you expect. You may find that it helps to concentrate on practical matters, such as the birth celebrations and future child care. You could make plans for recovering your prepregnancy figure. The belly won't be with you forever, even if it feels like it!
