

Washing your newborn baby's clothes ahead of the birth, may be one of the many nesting urges you have in late pregnancy.

PLASTER CASTS

Preserve your belly for posterity by making a plaster belly cast. You can either buy a kit or (far cheaper) purchase the plaster separately; it's all available online.

You will need:

- Plaster of Paris bandages, cut into strips
- Large tub of petroleum jelly
- Bucket of warm water
- One or two people to help you

Here's how to do it:

1. Strip down except for some old underwear (the smaller, the better)
2. Apply petroleum jelly liberally to your belly and breasts
3. Assume a comfortable pose
4. One by one, dip the plaster of Paris strips into the water, then apply, overlapping the layers until you have a thick coating.
5. Sit and wait for it to dry (rock hard).
6. Slip it off and paint it if you'd like.
