

possible exception is that having sex two days before ovulation may be slightly more likely to favor a girl.

If you already have two same-sex children, you're 75 percent more likely to conceive a child of that sex again. Although the sex of the baby conceived is random, conceiving children of the same sex could be down to the fact that some men produce better quality X sperm, which makes baby girls, or Y sperm, which makes baby boys. Statistically, couples who have two children of different sexes are less likely to try for a third child.
