

You've spent the last nine months anticipating this moment, but nothing can quite prepare you for how you'll feel when you meet your baby. In the coming weeks, as you recover from the birth, your world will change beyond your wildest imagination. Your emotions will run wild and cycle from one to the next, often in a very short time. Most importantly, you'll be getting to know your tiny baby and marveling at this new addition to your family.