

CONNECTING CONTINENTS

Underwater communications cables at the bottom of the ocean transmit 99 percent of data—including internet data—around the world. The cables are installed by special boats and land equipment and can be sunk as deep as Everest is tall—that's 29,028ft (8,848m) deep! When laying cables, care must be taken to avoid obstructions such as reefs and sunken wrecks.

