

IRIS

People often have the same eye color but the patterns created by the fibers in the iris are unique to every person and can be used to identify them. This image shows a magnified view of a blue iris surrounding the pupil.