

Inside the lungs

The lungs contain around 300 million microscopic alveoli at the ends of the airways. Oxygen enters the blood and carbon dioxide is removed through these tiny air bags.

