

Feeding the body

Before we can use the food we eat, it must be broken down, or digested, into simple nutrients. These nutrients are then absorbed into the bloodstream and carried to the body's cells.

Digestive system

The digestive tract is a tube that runs from the mouth to the anus. Each part of the tract plays its own part in digestion. Other organs, such as the teeth, salivary glands, and liver, also help with digestion.

