

MOUNTAIN DEFENCES

The builders of the Great Wall made extensive use of natural features, such as mountains and rivers, to enhance defensive effectiveness. Its walkway provided a means of moving troops through otherwise almost impassible terrain.