Jesuit settlements in the New World

The Society of Jesus was instrumental in the settlement of territory in the Americas and by 1767 had extensive missions.

LIKE THE PORTUGUESE NEARLY A DECADE EARLIER, the Spanish Crown grew concerned about the Jesuits and the order's activities in the American colonies. One of the underlying causes for concern had been Jesuit resistance to paying tithes to the Crown, and this reluctance was symptomatic of longer-running struggles between the order and the king. At issue was the Jesuits' growing influence and wealth in Spanish America through their schools, extensive landholding, and agricultural success. Claiming he was "moved by weighty reasons," Charles III decided to expel the Jesuits from his realm. This enabled the Crown to confiscate valuable Jesuit land and property. Thousands of the order's members fled to the Papal States and Corsica.

CAPTAIN JAMES COOK (1728–79) made his name in the Royal Navy with his excellent navigational skills and cartography of Canadian waters during the Seven Years' War (1756–63). These accomplishments paved the way for his next assignment—an expedition to the South Pacific. The mission was organized by the Royal Society, with the Admiralty providing the ship. The Endeavour set off from Plymouth on August 25 and arrived in Tahiti—via Madeira, Rio de Janeiro, and Cape Horn—on April 13, 1769. Cook then headed further south encountering the island later known as New Zealand. He eventually sailed from there to the unknown eastern coast of Australia where he landed in what became known as Botany Bay. The Endeavour returned to England in 1771 and Captain Cook's expedition was hailed a success.

As Cook was sailing the Pacific, other changes were afoot in Britain. Reflecting the growing desire for knowledge (the Enlightenment), the first volume of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, was published in Edinburgh. It was "compiled upon a new plan in which the different Sciences and Arts are digested into distinct Treatises or Systems." It soon sold out and by 1771 a three-volume set was completed.

Meanwhile, in London, former soldier Philip Astley (1742–1814) opened a riding school in 1768 called Halfpenny Hatch based in Lambeth, where he performed tricks on horseback in a ring. He added musicians, acrobats, and clowns to provide entertainment during the interludes, and the modern circus was born.

In Russia, events had taken a serious turn. Tensions with the Ottoman Empire had pushed the two into the Russo-Turkish War of 1768–74. The root cause was Catherine the Great's refusal to comply with the treaty ending the previous war with the Ottomans (1736–39), as well as her interventions in Poland. The Ottomans declared war after Russia sacked a Turkish town.

Further east, Prithvi Narayan Shah (1723–75) brought together kingdoms in the Kathmandu Valley to create the kingdom of Nepal.

THE SETTLEMENT OF NORTH AMERICA

showed no sign of abating, though its inhabitants still knew very little about the vast western territory. In 1769, an American named Daniel Boone (1734–1820) set off for a hunting expedition in present-day Kentucky, an area virtually unknown to white settlers. Along the way he worked out a better route along the Cumberland Gap, a plateau in the Appalachian mountains. This became part of the Wilderness Road, a trail blazed by Boone and the Transylvania Company, and later used by settlers to cross the mountains and reach the Kentucky territory. Boone and his family moved to Kentucky in 1775 and established one of the first towns, Boonesborough. He spent the rest of his life working as a hunter and explorer.

The Spanish, too, were looking to expand their territory in North America. They had claimed a region in present-day southern California that Charles III was eager to populate with Spanish settlers after rumors that Russia was planning to move into the area. To this end he sent Franciscan friars to establish missions in the region. Spanish Franciscan Junípero Serra (1713–84) began work on a series of missions throughout Spain's California territory. The first one, established in 1769, was San Diego de Alcalá, and over the course of the next 54 years a chain of 20 further missions was built along the California coast.
