TENSIONS BETWEEN RUSSIA AND

Persia restarted (see 1813) over the Caucasus region, with the Persians attempting to take back the territory of Georgia in 1825. However, a crushing defeat at the Battle of Ganja on September 26, 1826 halted the Persian advance. Russian troops then marched into Persia, eventually taking Tehran, leaving the Persians no option but to accept defeat. They negotiated the Treaty of Turkmanchai, which put the Russian border at the Aras River, returning the Caucasus territory to Russia.

In Hawaii, US missionaries had started to settle on the islands and America had become one of the kingdom's largest trading partners. The US was looking to protect its growing interests there by formalizing trade arrangements in the face of possible European competition, so it convinced the regency government of King Kamehameha III (1813–54) to sign the Hawaii–United States Treaty of 1826. The treaty stipulated that there would be peaceful and friendly political and trading relations between the two.

In France, inventor Joseph-Nicéphore Niépce (1765–1833) took the world's first photograph, known as View from the Window at Le Gras, which was of a barnyard in France. His technique involved making an eight-hour exposure onto a pewter plate using a camera obscura, which was a dark box with a tiny hole—a forerunner of the modern camera.

Artigas was the father of the Uruguayan independence movement, but had been in exile for several years when it was finally liberated.

AS GREECE'S BATTLE AGAINST the Ottoman Empire continued, neighboring powers began to call for an end to the conflict. Britain, France, and Russia joined together to sign the Treaty of London on July 6, which demanded the establishment of an independent Greek state. The Ottomans refused, confident they had the land and sea power to defeat the Greeks.

By autumn, the Ottoman resources were put to the test as a Turkish–Egyptian fleet went up against a naval force comprising British, French, and Russian ships at the Battle of Navarino on October 20. The Russo–European ships sunk three-quarters of the Ottoman fleet, and this humiliating defeat led to the eventual withdrawal of Turkish troops from Greece, which won independence in 1832.

THE TREATY OF MONTEVIDEO RECOGNIZED the independence of Uruguay in August 1828. The area, then known as the Banda Oriental, was disputed between Brazil and Argentina. It had been under Spanish control but during the wars of independence in South America, under the leadership of José Gervasio Artigas (1764–1850), the territory established its independence from Spain and Argentina in 1815. However, the following year, Brazil invaded and occupied it. This led to a further war, led by Juan Antonio Lavalleja (1784–1853) and his group known as the “thirty-three immortals.” Lavalleja, with Argentinian support, defeated Brazilian troops and founded an independent Uruguay.

Territorial disputes were also behind another conflict between the Ottoman Empire and Russia, with the Russians capturing Vidin and Varna (in present-day Bulgaria).

DEBATE OVER IRELAND HAD intensified after the Act of Union (see 1801). Daniel O’Connell, a Catholic lawyer, called for England to repeal its anti-Catholic laws, arguing that it could not claim to be representing the people of Ireland. In addition, he staged mass meetings about the issue of Catholic emancipation. In 1828, O’Connell stood for parliament and won, though he was not allowed to sit in government because of his Catholicism. His victory, however, attracted the attention of the British prime minister, Arthur Wellesley, the Duke of Wellington (see 1815), who was Irish though not Catholic. He oversaw the Catholic Relief Act 1829, which allowed Catholics in Ireland and England to take seats in Parliament and hold public office.

Elsewhere in England, inventor George Stephenson (see 1825) unveiled a new locomotive engine, known as the Rocket, which reached speeds of about 36 miles (58 km) per hour. He had entered the Liverpool and Manchester Railway competition for best new engine. The Rocket was the victor.

This year also saw progress of the railroad in the US, with the first American-built steam locomotive, Tom Thumb. In 1830, a race was staged against a horse-drawn cart to prove the superiority of steam power. Although the horse won on this occasion due to a technical fault with the train, the point was made and the owners of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad agreed to switch to steam trains.

EUROPE HAD SCARCELY RECOVERED from the unrest of the previous decade (see 1820) when France was convulsed by the July Revolution, an insurrection that forced the abdication of Charles X (r. 1824–30), who was replaced by Louis-Philippe, duke of Orléans (r. 1830–48). The rebellion had been triggered by Charles's attempt to enforce repressive ordinances, such as suspending the freedom of the press and modifying electoral law so many people lost their right to vote.

Louis-Philippe's succession to the throne signaled the arrival of power for the bourgeoisie, who were his chief support, rather than the aristocracy, and he remained in power until 1848.

Around the same time, revolts were taking place in the Italian and German kingdoms; in the Netherlands; and in Russia, as the Polish living under Russian rule rose up against the czar.
