

Poppy

7 As soon as a flower is pollinated, it sheds its petals. Seeds form inside the fruit.

5 Protected within the green sepals (leaf-shaped, and sometimes hairy, structures at the base of a flower), the bud grows colorful petals. When the flower is ready to open, the petals burst out.

6 Once the petals open up, insects, such as bees, are attracted to the sweet nectar inside and pollinate the flower.

