

A satellite night view of Earth, showing the continents of North America, South America, and Africa. The landmasses are dark, while the oceans are a deep blue. Numerous bright yellow and white lights are visible across the continents, representing city lights and urban areas. The lights are most concentrated in North America and Europe, with a few scattered lights in South America and Africa.

THE HUMAN WORLD

