

1681

PENNSYLVANIA FOUNDED

In 1681, English king Charles II granted a large area of land in North America to the Quaker William Penn, in payment of a debt owed to his late father. Penn founded a colony based on the principle of freedom of worship for all Christian sects. He signed a treaty with Indigenous Americans, the Lenape, in 1683 and established Philadelphia as a thriving capital for his colony.

▷ Penn's Treaty with the Indians, Benjamin West, 1772

1680

1681 The Canal du Midi is completed, linking the French Atlantic to the Mediterranean

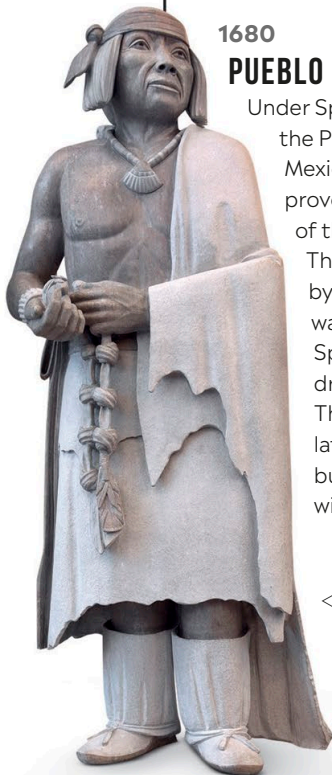

1682 Ten-year-old Peter I (the Great) takes the throne as tsar in Russia

1680

PUEBLO REVOLT

Under Spanish rule since 1598, the Pueblo people of New Mexico rose in revolt in 1680, provoked by the oppression of their religious practices. The resistance, organized by Popé, a religious leader, was so effective that the Spanish were completely driven out of the region. They returned 12 years later, after Popé's death, but no longer interfered with Pueblo beliefs.

◁ Popé, sculpted by Cliff Fragua

1644-1718
WILLIAM PENN

As a Quaker, Penn suffered persecution in England before becoming proprietor of Pennsylvania. The principles of his Frame of the Government of Pennsylvania later influenced the US Constitution.

“Let men be good, and the government cannot be bad.”

WILLIAM PENN, FRAME OF THE GOVERNMENT OF PENNSYLVANIA, 1682