

Building strength By 12 weeks your baby has learned a certain degree of head control. Some babies can lift their head up at this stage when lying on their front. Spending short amounts of time on his tummy helps to strengthen your baby's neck, back, and core muscles.