

PLANTS

Only the toughest plants can survive the extreme cold of a polar winter. Most are low-growing, so they are sheltered from the wind, and there are no tall trees. In the Arctic, all the plants flower at once when spring arrives to make the most of the short summer.

COTTONGRASS

ARCTIC WILLOW

ARCTIC POPPY

PASQUE FLOWER