

WHO SPIES?

Most spies work for someone else – usually a government, a company, or another person. Spying is their job. It involves finding out information that others would rather keep hidden, and passing those secrets on.

GOVERNMENTS

Every government runs its own intelligence agency. The agency employs spies to gather information.

PRIVATE COMPANIES

Private intelligence agencies spy on behalf of individuals, companies, and governments.

POLITICAL GROUPS

Campaigners may work to find out "dirty" secrets kept by big companies or the government.

INDIVIDUALS

Some people spy without being hired. They may discover a secret and share it.

...AND WHY?

Spying is a risky business, so why do people do it? They are usually motivated by one of four reasons. Experts explain these using the term "MICE", which stands for Money, Ideology, Compromise, and Ego.

MONEY

Most spies do what they do for the money. Top spies are paid huge sums for the secrets they uncover.

IDEOLOGY

Some spy because of beliefs, or ideology. They work for a government or organization that shares their beliefs.

COMPROMISE

Sometimes people fall into spying because they have a secret of their own. They are blackmailed into the job.

EGO

A small number of spies are motivated by ego. They think being a spy will be glamorous.

SECRET COMPARTMENTS

Spies need to be able to transport top-secret information, tickets, or messages without them being intercepted. Spies in World War I and II used special microdot cameras to shrink documents on to tiny pieces of film that could be concealed in the smallest hiding places.

WEAPONS

Used to threaten and wring out information, to silence an enemy for good, or for self-defence, guns and other weapons are an espionage essential. For some missions, they may be carried openly; on others, they must be carefully disguised.

GENERAL TOOLS

One challenge spies face is gaining entry to places where secrets are stored. Secret agents carry kit for breaking and entering, including fence cutters, key copiers, and lock picks.

CYBER SPIES

Computers and the Internet have changed the face of espionage. Cyber sleuths can now steal information remotely, by hacking into computers. Governments and companies take cyber espionage very seriously.

INTELLIGENCE AGENCIES

Governments need spies to tell them about threats from other countries. Some also carry out surveillance on their own citizens.

- MSS, CHINA
 In 1983 China merged existing agencies to make its Ministry of State Security (MSS).
- RAW, INDIA
 Created in 1968, India's Research and Analysis Wing (RAW) reports directly to the Prime Minister, not Parliament.
- CIA, USA
 The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) focuses on foreign threats to the USA.
- ISI, PAKISTAN
 Founded in 1948, Inter-Services Intelligence (ISI) collects information that affects Pakistani security.
- FSB, RUSSIA
 The Federal Security Service (FSB) was formed in 1995. It took over from the KGB after the fall of the Soviet Union.
- BND, GERMANY
 Germany's Federal Intelligence Service, or Bundesnachrichtendienst, was founded in 1956.
- DGSE, FRANCE
 Formed in 1982, the Direction Générale de la Sécurité Extérieure (DGSE) investigates threats to France.
- MI6, UK
 Formally called the Secret Intelligence Service, MI6 reports to the UK government and tracks terror threats.
- ASIS, AUSTRALIA
 The Australian Secret Intelligence Service (ASIS) was founded in 1952 to protect Australia's interests.
- MOSSAD, ISRAEL
 Formed in 1949, Israel's intelligence agency has around 1,200 employees.
