

Your brain and nervous system control your body. Electrical signals whizz along your nerve network to every organ and muscle, carrying commands and bringing back information.

