

A TIGHT SQUEEZE

Ten times narrower than strands of hair, capillaries form vast networks around your body, weaving through every tissue. This magnified image shows how a red blood cell has to squeeze its way through this system of tiny blood vessels.

