

Your body is always under attack. Tiny organisms called germs are constantly trying to get inside you, which can make you sick. Fortunately, the body has complex defenses for fighting off these invaders.

