

Wildernesses are the last places that have been largely unchanged by humans. Indigenous peoples sometimes live in these undeveloped areas, where their lifestyles sometimes impact little on the landscape and wildlife.