

Internet connections

The Internet has revolutionized the way we live our lives. At the click of a mouse, we can instantly exchange news, ideas, and images with people on the other side of the world, and we can buy or sell goods without having to leave our homes.

The Internet in a minute

Today, there are more than three times as many computers, phones, and other devices connected to the Internet as there are people in the world. As a result, an incredible amount of Internet activity can occur in just one minute.

