

Sharks

Fast, powerful, and armed with razor-sharp teeth, sharks are superb predators. They are much feared, but attacks on people are relatively rare. Humans, in contrast, kill 100 million sharks per year.

- |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|  Pacific angel sharkThis shark of the eastern Pacific lies on the seabed and ambushes passing fish. It is superbly camouflaged by its mottled, sandy back.   |  Frigid sharkWith its flat head and eellike body, this frigid shark looks very different than other sharks. It lives near the seabed in deep water. |  Bull sharkThis shark is one of the most dangerous to humans. It preys on sharks, rays, and other fish, as well as squid, turtles, and crustaceans.      |
|  Ornate wobbegongElaborately patterned and with fleshy projections around its jaws, this shark inhabits tropical waters, mainly around the Australian coast. |  Longnose sawsharkThe longnose lives off southern Australia. Its snout is a long, sawlike projection edged with rows of large, sharp teeth.         |  Piked dogfishOnce among the most abundant sharks, the piked dogfish is now threatened as a result of overfishing. It gathers in shoals by the thousand. |