

Percentage of adults who can read and write

Male-female differences

Of the 781 million illiterate adults around the world in 2010, nearly two-thirds were women. In some countries, girls are discouraged from attending school, leading to wide differences in literacy rates between men and women.